Notice,

To Wheelwrights, Blacksmiths, Tanners, Harness-Makers, Saddlers, Hatters, &c.

BELIEVING as I do, that PROVIDENCE, at Fairfax Court-House, would be a suitable situation for mechanics of the above description, I offer to such, lots in that village for sale, on ground rent for ever—will build and furnish suitable houses and rent to them, or furnish brick to them to build with; and invite any who feel disposed to settle there, for the purpose of carrying on their respective trades to advantage, to come and view the situation. It is a very public place, the centre of the county, where the superior and county courts are held. The Little River Turnpike Road passes through this little town from Alexandria westward, and where all the public meetings for the county, &c. are held; and where trades of the aforesaid description being carried on, would meet with great encouragement, and be a public convenience to the country around. No situation can be more healthy—good water, and fire wood cheap. Mechanics of the above description must generally depend on the country people, farmers, &c. to be their customers. Here they would be in a convenient situation for all the purposes. I invite a call, and view for themselves. I would also furnish lots adjacent, from one to five acres each, for cultivation, pasture, &c. on moderate terms; all of which can be shown, and terms made known, on application to RICH'D. RATCLIFFE.

RAN away on the 28th of April, from the farm of the subscriber, in Dogue Neck, Fairfax Co. Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. He is by occupation a farmer, a native of Kent county, in the state of Delaware, had on a blue cloth roundabout jacket, old black silk vest, corded velvet pantaloons, and a wool hat.

He is a very civil, inoffensive man, with rather a down look. There is reason to suppose that he was decoyed into a carriage, and conveyed southward.

Owners of, and those entitled (being all who served three years and upwards,) to warrants of the above description, are informed that, under the authority of a law of the United States, locations will, on the 4th day of July next, be permitted to be made on some valuable lands on the Scioto river, and the head waters of the Great Miami river—And as it will be the last opportunity to acquire good land, owners of warrants will do well not to neglect it.

Any warrants forwarded to the subscriber, will be located on such land as he may suppose most likely to please his employers. CADWALLADER WALLACE.
Chillicothe, (Ohio) April 15 19t*

For Sale or Lease,

THE following tracts of land in Charles county, Maryland: one lying on the Potomac, at the mouth of Pomonkey creek, containing three hundred and forty acres, about 16 miles from Alexandria, the larger portion level land, of a stiff soil, well adapted to the cultivation of corn, wheat and tobacco, and equal in fertility to any in the neighborhood. On this farm is one of the most elegant sites for building of all those fine heights which border the Potomac, commanding the most extensive view of the adjacent country, both in Virginia and Maryland, for more than twenty miles up and down the river: located in a genteel neighborhood, it would make an agreeable residence, and from its proximity to market, with the advantage of the best navigation, an extremely profitable farm.—The tenant's houses would accommodate the negroes for its cultivation.

A Tract, about one mile back from the former, containing 334 acres, a large portion in wood, white and red oak, and some chesnut; the remainder a tenement in tolerable repair, the whole a high stiff soil, similar to the one above mentioned.

A Tract, lying at the mouth of Mattawoman Creek, about 25 miles from Alexandria, the whole first rate flat river land, now completely enclosed.—On this tract is a noted fishery, called Hum Point, at which there has been cleared upwards of two thousand dollars per annum, and where independent of the fish sold on the shore, there might be put up from one to two thousand barrels every season; besides the profits of the fishery, the advantage of manuring the farm with the offal of the shore, the whole, with a small portion of industry, might be made to produce ten barrels of corn per acre. On the shore, are a dwelling house, houses for holding salt, and curing any quantity of fish, and for the accommodation of hands.

A Tract, lying about 1½ miles from the last mentioned, containing 236 acres, more than 200 of which are in wood, and would cut from 25 to 30 cords per acre, within one mile of the river, where wood has rarely sold for less than five dollars per cord. It will be divided into 50 or 25 acre lots, to suit purchasers.—If preferred, the wood will be sold standing, for so much per acre.

If not disposed of, previous to the first day of Sept. next, the above mentioned arable lands, will be leased out, upon advantageous terms, for five or seven years, at the option of the lessees.

Application to be made to the subscriber, residing near the head of Mattawoman Creek, Charles county, Maryland.

SPIRIT OF LIBERTY.

The legislature of Barbadoes have recently passed resolutions, declaring that any attempt to establish any tax, duty or fees on the inhabitants of that island by the lords commissioners of the British treasury, is illegal and ought to be resisted; instructing their agent in England to remonstrate against these attempts, and to protest that they will never be submitted to, and that they are in open violation of the inherent liberties of the people of that colony, who can of right be taxed only by their own representatives. These proceedings will recal to the minds of Americans the spirit which led their forefathers to resist British taxation, and to assert their rights and liberties. We hope that the same success may attend the resistance of all people whom their rulers may attempt to tax unlawfully, or otherwise oppress. [Franklin Gaz.

DARING ROBBERY!

On Wednesday of last week as Mr. Joseph Taylor of the house of Elder & Taylor, merchants in Baltimore, was returning home from this town and having progressed about 38 miles, he was attacked by three villains, one of whom presented a pistol to his breast threatening him with instant death in case of noise or resistance. In this unhappy dilemma Mr. Taylor thought submission was prudence. The rascals then blindfolded him, led him a considerable distance into the adjoining woods, tied him to a tree and then rifled him of all his money, amounting to between two and three thousand dollars.

The assault on Mr. Taylor was made at about one o'clock in the day; yet they kept him tied and blindfolded and remained with him until nine at night, when they loosed him under an injunction, that he should remain stationary for 10 minutes, upon peril of his life.

Much credit is due to the inhabitants residing in the part of the country near where the robbery was committed, for their prompt and spirited exertions in apprehending these scoundrels. We have no doubt that several hundreds were actively employed in this praiseworthy task and we are happy in stating that their exertions have been crowned with success. On Saturday they were apprehended in Newark about 26 miles westwardly from this place, and on Sunday they were brought to this town, under a sufficient escort, on their way to Guernsey Jail, the county wherein the crime was committed & where they are safely secured to await their trial. Something more than 2500 dollars was found with them. They are strangers in this part of the country, but we learn that they call themselves Jones, Green, and Jenkins.

Augusta, (Geo.) July 23.

A melancholy misfortune recently took place in the county of Burke, at the plantation of an acquaintance and friend of ours.—This gentleman had employed several workmen from the North to build a brick house. Not having been accustomed to the climate of Georgia, and fearing the consequences of a summer residence here, these workmen resorted to the wild hoar-hound, or thoroughwort, as a preventive of the fevers incident to our climate, during this period of the year. But unfortunately for these unhappy men, instead of being the means of preventing disease, the plant bas proved fatal, and three or four who were attacked by its venom have fallen victims to its effects. Doctor Allen, a young physician, lately from the Medical Institution of Philadelphia, was called in to dissect one of the unfortunate victims to this plant; and we are informed by the Doctor, that there is no doubt but that their death was occasioned by the poisonous qualities of the plant used for their preservation We are informed that there are a great number of species of the wild hoar-hound, and some of them extremely poisonous.

How dangerous is it thus to tamper with life, without resorting to those whose study and whose profession is to search into the mysteries of nature, and to apply their knowledge and experience to the benefit of mankind. We believe that much use is made of the wild hoar-bound in Georgia. Let the public beware of its effects.

Middlebury, (Vermont,) July 21.

REMARKABLE OCCURRENCE.

On the night of the 13th instant, a piece of land of upwards of two acres, on the western bank of Otter Creek, in Weybridge, instantaneously caved away and sunk about 20 feet from its former level.—The ground, except a few feet of the surface, was composed, to a depth not ascertained, of blue clay, the upper strata which were broken and turned up in a manner similar to cakes of ice, when stopped in an overflowing stream. There were on the ground, a dwelling house and potter's shop, which were overturned and dashed to pieces, and the furniture entirely destroyed. The frightened inhabitants luckily warned of their danger by the cracking of the house for a few minutes before the convulsion, had just made their escape. The walls and contents of the cellar sunk between the fragments of clay, and the garden, orchard, &c. with trees buried to their tops, exhibit a melancholy scene of ruin. The bed of the river, which was clay, and more than twenty feet deep in that place, was raised by the concussion so as to stop the water for 7 or 8 hours, when it cut a new channel.

The novelty of the event has attracted thousands of spectators to view the ruins.

A public dinner has been given to Mr. Speaker CLAY, at Hopkinsonville, Kentucky, at which he gave the following toast, which is a good one:—"The best remedy for hard times—increased productions—diminished expenditures."

INTELLIGENCE IN LITERATURE AND THE ARTS.

Lieutenant Hende has pleasingly added to that fullness of information which, within these few years, has been laid before the world, in relation to the Asiatic countries lying between India and Constantinople, and traversed in the overland journey.—To various novel information relative to Babylon, has Mr. H. added an account of the site on which Moses and his commentators have agreed in placing the Garden of Eden; and has illustrated his description by a view. The site is now called Korna, and it is a wretched marsh, overgrown with rushes, shaded by a few palms, and containing about fifty or sixty miserable huts, while the neighboring district is a miserable wilderness. [Phil. paper.

CHINESE METHOD OF TAKING WILD FOWL.

Whenever the fowler sees a number of ducks settled in any particular plash of water, he sends off two or three gourds to float among them. These gourds resemble our pompions; but, being made hollow, they swim on the surface of the water, and on one pool there may sometimes be seen twenty or thirty of these gourds floating together. At first the fowl are shy at coming near them, but by degrees they approach nearer; and as all birds at length grow familiar with a scare-crow, the ducks gather about them, and amuse themselves by whetting their bills against them.

When the birds are as familiar with the Gourds as the fowler could wish, he prepares to deceive them more effectually.—He hollows out one of these gourds large enough to put his head in; and making holes to breathe and see through, he claps it on his head. Thus accoutred, he wades slowly into the water, keeping his body under, and nothing but his head in the gourd above the surface; in that manner he moves imperceptibly towards the fowls, who suspect no danger. At last, however, he fairly gets in among them; while they having been long used to see gourds, take not the least alarm while the enemy is in the midst of them; and an insidious enemy he is; for, whenever he approaches a fowl, he seizes it by the legs, and draws it in a jerk under water; there he fastens it under his girdle, and proceeds to the next, 'till he has loaded himself with as many as he can carry away. When he has got his quantity, without ever attempting to disturb the rest of the fowls on the pool, he slowly moves off again; and in this manner pays the flock three or four visits in a day. Of all the various artifices for catching fowl, this seems likely to be attended with the greatest success, and it is the most practised in China.

EXCAVATION IN TAURIS.

"In the course of some recent diggings, near Fanagoria, in the government of Tauris, a vault in the form of a tomb was discovered, containing a human body of prodigious size, in a state of high preservation. It is presumed that the body has lain there since a remote period of antiquity, for it is well known that Tauris formed one of the colonies of ancient Greece.—The head was encircled with a laurel wreath in gold; on the forehead was a gold medal, with a head, and the initials P. P. (Philip.) On each side of the body were vases of silver and porcelain, chains of gold, and ear-rings On one of the fingers was a gold ring, with a precious stone, on which were engraven two figures, the one male and the other female, admirably executed."

From the Baltimore Morning Chronicle.

A friend has furnished us with the following outline of the New Constitution of the South American Provinces. The pamphlet which, as we yesterday announced, contained the constitution, is a beautiful specimen of typography, and furnishes very favorable evidence of the rapid progress of the arts under the auspices of a free government. In truth, the observation that was made by Cicero, that all the arts are connected as it were by a chain, may be applied with more force to the connexion between the arts and a free government. The pamphlet, besides the constitution, contains the declaration of independence, and a manifesto of the congress or convention, explaining at large the reasons upon which the leading principles are founded.

The legislative power is divided into two branches, called a senate and an house of representatives. The members of the latter branch are to be elected by the people, in the proportion of one to every twenty-five thousand; to remain in office for the term of four years; one half to retire at the end of two years, which is to be decided by lot.

The senate is to be composed of one senator for each province—three senators from amongst the generals—one a bishop, and two from the other clergy—the supreme director to be a senator at the conclusion of his term of office: this body to be elected for twelve years—to be divided into three classes; so that one third may retire from office every four years.—The ex-supreme director is to retire at the termination of the time of his successor, who is to take his place. The supreme director is to be elected by the joint ballot of both houses. The house of representatives are to originate all money bills, over which the senate have no other power but to approve or reject—they are to hold a general or inquisitorial power over all the officers of the government, and to prepare articles of impeachment against military or other delinquents.

Such are the leading features of a constitution now prepared for the acceptance of the people. It is a constitution stronger than that of the United States, and its assumption of a form more aristocratical, may easily be accounted for, from the difference of habits, manners and prejudices of the citizens of the two countries. It may be laid down as a general principle appropriate to all times, and to all circumstances, that in proportion as the people are prone to licentiousness, the government must be strong: there must be a power capable of repressing all attempts on the part of the people to obtain by violence, what might otherwise be obtained in a manner pointed out by the constitution. Hence, mobs, tumults and insurrections lead direct to a monarchy; they are the stepping stones by which wicked and ambitious men mount to the heights of absolute power. In the present brief analysis of the constitution of Buenos Ayres, the evil more immediately guarded against, is the disposition of the executive to assume an uncontrolable influence: the former governor, the vice roy, possessed this formidable power, which was not less dangerous, when assumed by the hands of a director. To this power the senate affords a timely and a salutary check, while the more popular branch of the government, the house of representatives, are by the term for which they are elected, removed from that phrenzy, that may seize occasionally on the minds of their constituents; they have time to ponder and deliberate before they ultimately resolve.—The gentleman who has favored us with the above analysis, states what must be peculiarly gratifying both to the pride and the feelings of our countrymen, that the work of the late president Adams, on the constitution of the United States, is translated from the French into their language, and is regarded as a text book by the patriots of Buenos Ayres. When we say that a constitution formed on the principle of that of Buenos Ayres, may be the best for that people, it does not follow, as some shallow politicians would infer, that it would be the best form of government for the United States of America. These patriots have seen not only the dangers of monarchy, but likewise those arising from popular licentiousness, and they are anxious to provide against both.

An interesting prospect is now presented to this people: a formidable armament is preparing to carry fire and sword against a nation, young and unpractised in the principles of a free government; the names of those who have rendered themselves eminent in the present struggle, will be shortly made conspicuous on the page of Spanish history, as patriots, or as rebels. What remains yet to be accomplished, is enveloped in the clouds of futurity—blood will undoubtedly flow; but whether this is to cement the stones of which this new temple reared to liberty in the western world is constructed, is a question which only the Deity can determine. Tyranny and freedom are always irreconcileable enemies; they have mutually sworn, like Hannibal at the altars an exterminating hate. In these records of former ages that have been unfolded to our eyes, we have seen freedom and tyranny alternately triumph and expire—free nations have bowed their heads to a despot, and nations long enslaved have manufactured their chains into avenging swords. This bloody tragedy is shortly, we presume, to be acted over again—human victims are the only acceptable sacrifices to the demon of war, who having been exiled from the continent of Europe, seeks his abode in South America. He is now preparing another infernal repast, and it is not for us short-sighted mortals to determine, to what extent he will be gratified.

The president of the Junta is Dean Funes, mentioned by Mr. Rodney, the historian of the country, and supposed to be one of the warmest advocates of a constitution assimilating so nearly to that of the United States.

LETTERS FROM AN AMERICAN TRAVELLER, NOW ON A TOUR TO MISSOURI, &c.

No. II.

Cavern at Put-in-Bay, Lake Erie.

On the 12th July, we left Black Rock, in the steam boat Walk-in-the-water, for the upper lakes. Every comfort & luxury was amply provided on board The party were such as to make the trip sociable and friendly, and that monotony frequently experienced, and inwardly complained of "the noise of steam boat machinery" was lost in the "mazes of the sprightly dance, and the echo of sweet music."

The next day we found ourselves amidst the Islands near Sandusky Bay. Those beautiful specks, rising from the bosom of the water, giving the most charming effect to the scenery. We landed at Put-in-Bay to take in more fuel, and most of us, including a few enterprising ladies, visited the cavern, situated in the centre of one of the islands forming the harbor of Put-in-Bay—a name that will be dear to every American. This cave is difficult of access, admitting but of one person of a moderate compass, at a time. After sliding down, feet foremost, on the damp earth, for about seven yards, we find ourselves on a table rock of lime-stone, arched and roofed by the same material, which originally composed one mass, but whose foundation has been undermined by the deep water, leaving the upper stratum to be supported by the surrounding rocks. Its area is about twenty thousand square feet, seven feet in height, and of an oblong form. At its extreme, there is a descent of several steps, of flag stone, to a small lake or spring of transparent, cool water.

In descending this dark cavern, most of us were obliged to leave most of our hats and coats behind—some had provided themselves with dresses, corresponding to the rudeness of the entrance, and when all arrived at the descent leading to the water, we seated and otherwise rested ourselves, in various positions, whilst one of the gentlemen attached to the suite of Gen. Brown, who himself was with us 'the gayest of the gay,' gave us a song suited to the occasion, accompanied, in the best style, by the echo of a fine flute. In the course of a whole life, we seldom witness so picturesque a scene. The dark recesses of the cavern, in contrast with the glare of our numerous tapers, which reflected every face from the water, gave to each variety of costume and figure, the magic effect of a banditti's midnight revelry. In the midst of this group, was seated on a rock, resting a cheek of pure vermillion on an arm as white as snow, the lovely Mrs. G——y, herself the queen of beauty among the robbers. Indeed, it was a scene far superior to any dramatic representation.

But enough of the cavern: you must now accompany me through the streights of Detroit, leaving Sandusky Bay and the Miami of the lakes on our left, whilst we are compelled for the sake of a deep channel, to pass under the guns of Malden. Then commences that stream of compact population that characterized the French in their first settlement—log houses, neatly squared in close Indian file, along a water line.—Every tree, without discrimination, was levelled to the ground, for a half mile in length from the river; the plain laid open, and the farms so narrow, on the roads, as to admit neighbors to give each other the morning salutation. In a few hours, we passed Sandwich on our right bank, and Spring Wells on our left, and was landed at Detroit in safety. And so may heaven preserve your life a thousand years.

NO. III.

Lake and River St. Clair.

Dear Sir,—Detroit, you know, is an old city, and not of rapid growth; yet, some improvements have taken place there since the war—among which are, a court-house, lately built by the government, a spacious catholic church, and several new stores.—These, with the hospitality and polished manners of the families of Governor Cass and Gen. Macomb, have added considerable to its attractions.

You must now imagine yourself on board, and, with the addition of a fine breeze to our steam, pass with me up the lake and river St. Clair, and I am confident you will be enraptured with the beauty of the surrounding scenery. Much as the towering heights of the Hudson and the verdant banks of the Connecticut have been admired, and as much as you have heard of the green rolling hills of the Ohio, and the gentle slope of the shores of the St. Lawrence, yet, even these scenes fall far short of the charming prairies of St. Clair; and I may venture to say, that the warmest imagination of the poet, nor the most glowing tints of the painter, can do them justice. A habitation is only now & then seen, on banks as level as your floor, enamelled with wild flowers and ever green grass, rich beyond conception. The eye can scarcely measure those beautiful lawns which are only interrupted by groves that rise like islands to cheer the navigator, and give the eye repose. Near their delightful shade, where the ivy winds round the the sugar maple, & the weeping elm sighs to the breeze, extensive droves of cattle feed on pasture on which the foot of man has seldom trod. If ever there was a time to despise the bustle of a crowded city, and become enamoured of a pastoral life, it is in the midst of scenes like these—where the silent and solitary cabin seems to invite the traveller to the abode of peace and primitive innocence.

We have some reason to believe that these prairies were once only an arm of Huron, and Huron itself an offspring of the ocean. Its south shore from fort Gratoit to lake Michigan has every mark of the sea shore of Long-Island and New-Jersey. There was a time, perhaps when the mighty weight of waters sunk this part of the continent below the horizon, and the falls of Niagara* were lost in the great level of old ocean; and the time may come when those waters will leave their basins, and find one uninterupted channel to their mother, the Atlantic. Then the future historian may stand on the Niagara streight and point to that line on lake Erie which now bounds two empires, and say—"Yonder plain was once the great lake where hostile ships have fought, and the fate of a nation been decided; and here flows a gentle current, where once was a mighty cataract, the wonder of ages, and the admiration of the world."

The outlet of those waters is certainly an extraordinary phenomenon. Notwithstanding all the rains which fall in the upper valley of the St. Lawrence, and the melting of innumerable snows and ices, still the lower and even banks of the St. Clair and Niagara maintain their ascendency, and their waters are kept, by some invisible hand within their bounds. The river St. Clair† has no doubt, lost in extention and gained in depth; for the mouth of Huron once evidently extended far to the east, on the Canada side; but the sands have been driven from the shores of the lake, by the north wind, and now occupy the shallows to the south.

The changes which the features of our globe have undergone, constitute an interesting subject of reflection. God in his wisdom, gives us the earth, rich in forrest, and filled with game and verdure; man enters the wilderness to destroy the one and exhaust the other; until luxury enervates, and sterility drives him to seek for new forests, and richer valleys. In the mean time an inscrutable Providence in the process of unnumbered ages, resuscitates what man has laid waste, by raising islands to continents, and reducing continents to Islands. When the cities of Asia and Africa rose in their splendor, the American continent may have only been an island of the Andes, and the rocky mountains.—When the fertile vallies of the Mississippi are exhausted and made barren, the deserts of Africa or Arabia may blossom like the rose. Man has not been sensible of these alterations, for his life is as a moment. He cannot trace the sands that are washed from the mountain and gained on the seashore. But, adieu, you will say to such extravagant speculations—they make us too serious—we must rise in the morning to view the blue waves of the Huron.

* This is the idea of a late tourist.

† This river, at fort Gratoit, is said to be 60 fathoms deep, and not more than 450 yards wide.

St. Louis, June 30.

SONS NEBR, a chief, and one of the principal counsellors of the Great Osages tribe, arrived here a few days ago on an embassy from his nation to the president, to lay before his excellency on his arrival here, the difficulties which at present exist between them and the government, and its officers, &c. &c.

Last week colonel Henry Atkinson, on seeing the ferry boats worked by wheels, immediately conceived the idea of applying them to the barges, bound up the Mississippi with U. S. troops, stores, &c.—In about three days he had one of the barges rigged with wheels and a trial made, in which she was run up the Missouri about two miles and back in 30 minutes.

It is highly gratifying that the government has placed this prompt, decisive and distinguished officer in the command of this important station.—This improvement which he has put on these barges will prove of vast importance to the government, both in expedition and saving expense.

By the Rising Sun, at Norfolk, from St. Barts, St. Kitts papers to the 6th ultimo have been received. An article in one of the latter date confirms the account received at Baltimore from St. Thomas of the 3d ult. respecting the victory obtained by the Patriot army in the province of Barcelona—the account is received by a vessel just arrived at St. Kitts, from Oronoco.—The battle took place on the 10th June, at Chopparo, in Barcelona; and the loss sustained by the Royalists, under col. Borrea, was 1000 killed, besides prisoners wounded, and the whole of their baggage. After the battle, Gen. Marino took up a position, promising ulterior advantages. [New-York Gazette, August 5.

Obituary.

Died at his brother's house in Baltimore, on Friday morning last, after a few days illness, at the age of 19 years, GEORGE WASHINGTON SWIFT, son of Jonathan Swift, esq. of this town.

In the death of this amiable youth, we have, were it required, another solemn testimony of the uncertainty of human existence. From the correct moral deportment of the deceased, and his abstainment from those irregularities too frequent among youth, together with his known veneration for the Gospel of Jesus, his friends were led to entertain the consoling belief, that his soul was prepared for the awful change so speedily to take place—the intervals in deliriums, caused by the violence of his disease, enabled him to give them the well grounded hope that his soul, sprinkled by the atoning blood of Him who died for sinners, now rests in peace with his Saviour and his God. It was then that, sensible of his approaching dissolution, he calmly submitted to the pains of disease without a murmur—the obedience and affection he had ever shown to his afflicted parents, were now most conspicuous.

The associates of his youth will long cherish the memory of one whose generous heart, and unaffected friendship, could not fail to endear him to all who shared in his acquaintance.

To you, his late companions, to all, he speaks from the cold grave, in a voice, which wisdom will cherish.

Be ye also ready!

Stone Ware.

JOHN SWANN, manufacturer of stone ware, in the town of Alexandria, respectfully informs his customers, that he has been enabled lately to make a great improvement in his ware, although it has been at considerable expense and labor, and he looks to a generous public for a support. He also would inform them, that he has on hand, at this time, a large assortment of ware, equal to any made in the United States. The merchants in the adjoining counties in Virginia will find it to their advantage in buying stone ware from him, as he is determined none shall sell lower than he does, his prices being at this time from 20 to 30 per cent. lower than they are in Baltimore; and he will warrant his ware to be of a good quality, which has been acknowledged by the very best judges of that article.

Merchants from the country leaving or sending their orders to Messrs. J. & J. Douglas; B. Hampson & Co.; or J. W. Massey; he will have them promptly filled up, and all orders thankfully received by Lands for Sale.

BY VIRTUE of a power of attorney from William S. Courts to the subscriber, will be sold at public sale.

On WEDNESDAY, the 11th AUGUST, in Port Tobacco, that valuable tract of land whereon John H. Barnes at present resides called lying and being in Charles county Maryland, containing between three and four hundred acres. This land is handsomely situated, lying immediately on Matawoman Creek, at least one third of which is in wood, with a sufficient quantity of marsh land for grazing—that part of the land which is in cultivation is well adapted to the growth of corn, wheat and tobacco, and with proper care would be equal, if not superior to any land in that neighborhood.

ALSO,

At the same time and place, will be offered for sale the plantation at present in the occupancy of Francis & Sam'l Wheeler, lying about one mile from the above place, containing about four hundred acres. As it is presumed that persons wishing to purchase will first view the premises, it is thought unnecessary to give a more particular description thereof. The terms of sale will be as follows: viz. possession given on the first day of January next, at which time one third of the purchase money will be required, the remaining two thirds at one and two years the purchaser giving bond with approved security with interest.—Upon the payment of the whole purchase money, a sufficient deed will be executed to the purchaser.

JOHN HOPKINS

Hill and Dale, April 20.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary out-house, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment. may 25

Missouri and Illinois Bounty Lands

THE subscriber has now for sale a number of the most valuable tracts, in both of those rich and improving bodies of lands, and can supply applicants with any number they may wish, and in any part of either territory. Every person who visits the Western Country, particularly those who intend settling there, should take with them a few quarter sections of those lands; every man who has a young and growing family, and can spare a few hundred dollars, should not miss the present opportunity of getting some of those lands; as it will insure to his children a greater certainty than any other investment he can possibly make for their benefit.—From the immense emigration to both Illinois and Missouri, particularly to the military lands, it is certain there must be a great rise in the price very soon, and those who miss the present opportunity, will never again have a chance to do so well. The patents will be sold very low, for cash, good notes or bonds at short dates, or bank stock in the Central Bank of Georgetown and Washington, and the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Georgetown. As I am a large dealer in Military Bounty Lands, I can supply any number that may be required.

Please to apply at my Exchange Banking House, Bridge-street, Georgetown.
